President Wilson began breaking traditions today when, in addition to paying a formal jost to the city hall, for the appointed ceremonies there, he planned to make a call at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the ministry of war for a talk with Premier Clomenceau, who also is minister of war. He decided also to accept the dinner invitations of foreign ambassadors, his first acceptance being to the invitation extended by the Earl of Derby, the British ambassador to France.

CLIPPER SHIPS IN LONG RACE

Contest Between Vessels Carrying Tes From China to England One of the Best on Record.

The China clipper races, contested by vessels carrying ten to England, covered the longest course of any race in history. One of the most fa-mous was that of 1800. It was arranged that nine of these ships should sail from Frochow with the new sea-son's teas as nearly as possible on the same day, but only five finished loading in time. The Fiery Cross was the first to start, being towed out to sea early on May 29. The Ariel followed next morning at 10:80, the Serica and the Taeping sailing 20 minutes later, while the Taitsing did not put to sea until midnight on the 31st. They were, of course, all chosen ships with a repuation for speed.

The Fiery Cross was the first to round the Cape of Good Hope, 46 days out, with the Ariel on her heels, while the Taeping, Serica and Taitsing were respectively one, four and eight days behind. The Ariel led from the Agores to the entrance to the English channel, where the Serica and Taeping pulled up ahead of the others, and there followed a ding-dong race, up the channel, with a fine spread of canvas and a strong southerly wind.

The Ariel and the Taeping were the leaders, first one and then the other drawing ahead, the others sweeping along not far behind. It was a worthy finish for such crack ships The Taeping arrived in the London the Ariel in East India docks at 10:15 p. m., and the Series in the West India docks at 11:30 p. m.

TWO OLD TIMERS

MISS CATHERINE EGAN WEDS RAYMOND HAYES

The marriage of Raymond James Mayes of this city and Miss Catherine Egan of Chicago, took place in that city Dec. 11, at 5 o'clock at St. Laurence church. The bride was gowned in white satin, with a train, she wore a veil fastened on with a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white roses and illies of the valley. The groom wore his uniform, which he has been wearing at Kelly Field, where he was in the officers training camp, from which place has received his honorable discharge. They were attended by Max Bailey and Miss Theressa Egan, a cousin of the bride. After the ceremony, a dinner, and reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Thomas Egan of 6761 East End Ave. Raymond Hayes was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hayes of Janesville and grow to manhood in this city and has many friends here who'l extend congratulations. Those that attended from this city were Mr. and Mrs. Michael McKlegue, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy McKelgue and Frank Hayes. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hayes arrived in the city Saturday evening. They will spend a few days in town with relatives.

It is personal to Wilson, because the is our President—the represents the United States. France honors lilm. but in so doing honors us as a peo-ple. There would be no mistake in this. It is not the signal honor to the man who was elected on the platform, "He Kept I's Out of War," whose serving of war atated at a critical period, "The war is three thousand miles away from us," but to the nation who loyally responded to the call for thousand for troops, for men, for money and for tool. The nation that has fed Europe and must continue to feed Europe, until this war is ended. President Wilson's reception can be taken as a personal tribute to every loyal American, not the three hundred odd thousand so-called Americans who gave aid to the German govconment through their secret service, while having bleerty bonds and servour on the Red Cross yet rave valuable information to the enemy, as shown by the secret service operators' reports. ORGANIZING FOOD PRO-

The government, it is announced, will soon give out a program for an organized movement to increase the food supply.

The success won in the Liberty bond, Red Cross and War Work drives ought to teach us a lot about organizing food production. These drives were put over by going from house to house and asking neople to give, the ground being well prepared There are other battles to win, by newspaper advertising.

Now let the government handle the food production in the same way. Every farmer in the country should be visited by some representative of the Farm Bureau or other local organization of business men. Personal in-terviews will obtain co-operation from many people where you would get it from agitation at public meetings.

The organizations conducting these canvasses should find out from each man what obstacles exist that prevent him from raising bigger crops. If it is lack of farm machinery and tools, arrangements could be made in a great many cases to share the use of such machinery with neighbors. If a man needs more capital for a legiti-mate extension of his business, and if he has good security, he should get the funds. If he needs more labor, he should be shown that the government employment services and other agen-

THE GAME LAWS.

Perhaps there are individuals who play too much political pull in this day and age of law enforcement and they got by with it, but certainly there are a number of "game hogs" who have been market lumters this last full, more than ever before. JANESVILLE'S GROWTH IS ASSURED BY ENTRANCE OF GENERAL MOTORS

Doubts as to its Permanency May be Dispelled by the Definite Program Which Has Been Outlined by Corporation in Building For Future.

The writer has been asked a certain question in some form or other so many times in the last two weeks that I am going to digress from a so many times in the last two weeks that I am going to digress from a discussion of city expansion, and answer it by giving my impression as an outsider coming into the city to become a future resident.

The question concretely put is this: "Do you think Janesville is really going to grow and will that growth be permanent?"

There should be no doubt in the mind of the man, who has vision, that Janesville will grow in spite of herself. If there was not a single effort made on the part of the men who would like to see the city develop, it would have to grow. If there was not a single booster in the city, it could not remain in its present condition. It is impossible to stand still with the coming of a concern, one of the greatest of its kind in the world, and which has a definite building program. Progress must result.

and which has a definite building program. Progress must result.

As has been proven in nearly every case where a city has had the good fortune to have an established company with millions back of it. plck it as a location, and then immediately formulate plans for putting its plant in operation, other industries are going to be attracted. The General Motors Corporation is not the only industrial firm which will come to Janesville. If Janesville is good enough for the General Motors Corporation, a concern that chooses its locations with care, and that does not make one single move unless it is sure that move is the best, it is good enough for other manufacturers.

This is not a stock-jobbing proposition. The unit of the plant which is being built now is not for show. That unit is being built so that the manufacture of hundreds of tractors can be started at once.

manufacture of hundreds of tractors can be started at once.

The demand for those tractors is growing. A recent advertisement in newspapers and trade magazines brought thousands of requests for information concerning agencies and even demands for machines. The work of construction is being fushed as ripidly as possible and when it is finished, skilled mechanics will be brought here to turn them out. When the first unit is complete, a second will be started, and when that is finished, third, and the part of the complete and Janesville will have ished, a third, and so on until all are completed and Janesville will have one of the greatest industrial plants in the nation.

These men are not putting their dollars into the erection of a plant to put over any scheme. If Janesville was not located right and did not have facilities suitable to the needs of the concern, they would not have located here. It is not costing Janesville anything but her efforts to get ready for the expansion which will take place as soon as the population

Increases.

These men who are back of the project only ask that those who come to work and who will in turn spend their dollars with merchants and to work and who will in turn spend their dollars with internants and business men; who will be ready to buy their homes and take their places as taxpayers, be considered; that preparation be made for them now so that they can have pleasant, comfortable homes in which to live, good schools in which to educate their children, and that their general welfare may be considered.

There is no question but that the growth will not only be rapid, but permanent. Take the city of Flint, Mich., for example. A few years ago it was confronted with a sudden industrial growth. The population inereased almost over night. The city woke up and rubbed its eyes and then had to toss off its bed-clothes of inertia and hit the floor with both feet so that it could get on its clothes before it was caught half-dressed, with company knocking at the front door. As a matter of fact it had to use its entire wardrobe to make any sort of presentable appearance. The vest did not meet the waisiband of the trousers and the pants were decidedly "high-water."

Flint had to mustle to keep pace with the industrial development. Those who were able to see what was before them in concrete and brick and steel got back of the things that had to be done and kept their shoulders right to the wheel until the job was well along. Now Flint is one of the most thriving cities in the country and cannot be anything cise for an unlimited period.

Janesville has a bunch of boosters among the business men who have vision. They are thoroughly awake to the opportunities which have come. They are ready to grasp them in a big way. They are going to build for the future on a scale which will assure others who seek locations that there is no better place in which to live.

They have formed a Chamber of Commerce which will see that these things are accomplished without lost motion; that before anything is started the foundation is built on a solid ground, but when the plan is ready it will be carried through with every ounce of energy necessary to make it a practical success. With such an organization operating for the good of the whole community and not for the benefit of a small clique whose ambitions might be selfish, as is the case in some other cities, men who are looking for a location where they are assured of hustling co-operation are going to be attracted.

This outline of the situation as seen by one who is acquainted with other places suddenly called upon, should answer all doubters as to the future of one of the best cities in the middle west.

OPEN TO MEN OVER 18

Madison. Dec. 16.—A special 12week vocational course in automobile mechanics, similar to the course given to the soldiers in the army vocational detachments, will be given by the College of Engineering of the University of Wisconsin, during the second quarter, beginning Dec. 30, according to an announcement just made by the college.

For the course, the university will utilize instructors and equipment that the aprovided for the army auto schoel which has trained about 660 soldiers in the four detachments since last April. The course is being established because experience in the training of auto specialists has led the university to believe that there is a great shortage of thoroughly competent auto mechanics. Regular students in steam and gas engineering will also take advantage of the course.

conqueror ever entered Rome. True, no fair captives walked behind his chariet, bound by chains of gold, as did Zenobia, but his reception left nothing in modern welcome to be found wanthus.

Woodrow Wilson went to Europe nrsed by many peoples of various nationalities, the majority of them those that had been represented by the central nations, by the neutral nations, who took no part in the war, but really favored Germany at heart, r through fear, but not as far as any diplomatic papers yet show, by England, France, Belgium or Italy, the four nations that the world considers having borne the brunt of the fighting.

President Wilson represents the Fritted States. As such representa-tive he deserves all the honors that in as showered upon him. He is to France, not us a republican or a demi-ocrat, but as the head of the government of a great republic that has drained itself, denied itself and furnished its millions in men and its billions in money, to bring about a world-wide democracy. The blood our youths shed, the graves that dot the fills of France, the malaced and wounded who have returned to us, and the sick and those who died in the training camps, are all recognized in this greeting.

It is personal to Wilson, because he is our President—in represents the United States. France honors him. but in so doing honors us as a peo-ple. There would be no mistake in ple. There would be no missake in this. It is not the signal honor to the man who was elected on the platform. "He Kept I's Out of War," whose sectorry of war stated at a critical puriod, "The war is three thousand miles away from us," but to the nation who loyally responded to the call for troops, for men, for money and for food. The nation that has fed Europe and must continue to feed Europe, until this war is ended.
President Wilson's reception can be taken as a personal tribute to every local American, not the three hundred odd thousand so-called Americans who cave aid to the German gov-ernment through their secret service, while buying Elberty bonds and servornic maying theory donds and serving on the Red Cross yet gave valuable information to the enemy, as shown by the secret service operators' reports. The real loyal Ameriters reports. The real loyal admet-ions can read with pleasure the ad-dress of welcome to our president and read his reply. It reflects credit upon almost every home in this great notion of curs. Vidson's welcome was a spontane combustion of the Latin spirit of the French. It was for the nation he is ruler over and for the whole na-tion. It is perhaps best he went-neross the water, but still it once neross and baving no part in the real deliberations, where is his personal

Meanwhile let us all take to bear the wondrous message sent to the world and the woodrous results that are to come when not only the old German government, conveniently no lenger in existence, is not held solely to blame for the outrages permitted in Belgium and northe a France, and that Germany as a whole must be re-spensible and pay the great cost of this unnecessary was that has cost billions and meant the destruction of millions of human beings.

ORGANIZING FOOD PRODUCTION.

The government, it is announced, will soon give out a program for an organized movement to increase the food supply. The success won in the Liberty bond, Red Cross and Wice Work-drives ought to teach us a lot about organizing food production. THE GAME LAWS.

Perhaps there are individuals who play too much political pull in this day and age of law enforcement and they gal by with it, but certainly there are a number of "game hogs" who have been market hunters this last full, more than ever before. True, the law was passed in the interests of the full, more than ever before. This is not complying with the law and evidence has been accumulated against some representative hunters pending a general decision of the Fish and Game Commission whether they should be prosecuted or not. Better arrest these men for violations than have game wardens creeping around seeking lations of the ferret law that fail in conviction. Tonight the re-organization of the local order takes place Let us hope this question will be discussed.

RED CROSS WEEK

The membership fee you have to pay to enter an organization is no fair test of the value of the society. In the larger cities society people gladly give from $100 to $1,000 to belong to their swell clubs. There may be little' social life, the atmosphere may be WILSON'S WELCOME.

As representative of the United States of America, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, has been received in Paris as no Roman True, and the property. A rather barren satisfaction to simple-minded and genuine people.

On the other hand there is one organization to which you can belong for $1.00 a year. That is the Amer-ican Red Cross. A thrill of happiness will be telt by you overy time you see its blessed symbol. Its white ground stands for its pure zeal of service. The red of the cross stands for the suffering humanity that it relieves and helps back on its feet.

No aristocratic society which one could possibly join is worth so much as the sense of affiliation with this no-ble effort, the knowledge that you belong to that great army of ministering spirits who are binding up the world's wounds, and nursing the suffering back to health.

JANESVILLE'S GROWTH IS ASSURED BY ENTRANCE OF GENERAL MOTORS

Doubts as to its Permanency May be Dispelled by the Definite Program Which Has Been Outlined by Corporation in Building For Future.

(By Harry V. Ross).

The writer has been asked a certain question in some form or other so many times in the last two weeks that I am going to digress from a discussion of city expansion, and answer it by giving my impression as an outsider coming into the city to become a future resident.

The question concretely put is this: "Do you think Janesville is really going to grow and will that growth be permanent?"

There should be no doubt in the mind of the man, who has vision, There should be no doubt in the mind of the man, who has visible, that Janesville will grow in spite of herself. If there was not a single effort made on the part of the men who would like to see the city develop, it would have to grow. If there was not a single booster in the city, it could not remain in its present condition. It is impossible to stand still with the coming of a concern, one of the greatest of its kind in the world, and which have a definite building program. Programs must result.

and which has a definite building program. Progress must result.

As has been proven in nearly every case where a city has had the good fortune to have an established company with millions back of it. good fortune to have an established company with millions back of it, pick it as a location, and then immediately formulate plans for putting its plant in operation, other industries are going to be attracted. The General Motors Corporation is not the only industrial firm which will come to Janesville. If Janesville is good enough for the General Motors Corporation, a concern that chooses its locations with care, and that does not make one single move unless it is sure that move is the best, it is good enough for other manufacturers.

not make one single move unless it is sure that move is the best, it is good enough for other manufacturers.

This is not a stock-jobbing proposition. The unit of the plant which is being built now is not for show. That unit is being built so that the manufacture of hundreds of tractors can be started at once.

The demand for those tractors is growing. A recent advertisement in newspapers and trade magazines brought thousands of requests for information concerning agencies and even demands for machines. The work of construction is being rushed as rapidly as possible and when it is finished, skilled mechanics will be brought here to turn them out. When the first unit is complete, a second will be started, and when that is finished, a third, and so on until all are completed and Janesville will have one of the greatest industrial plants in the nation.

These men are not putting their dollars into the erection of a plant to put over any scheme. If Janesville was not located right and did not have facilities suitable to the needs of the concern, they would not have have facilities suitable to the heads of the content, and have located here. It is not costing Janesville anything but her efforts to get ready for the expansion which will take place as soon as the population increases.

These men who are back of the project only ask that those who come to work and who will in turn spend their dollars with merchants and business men; who will be ready to buy their homes and take their places as taxpayers, be considered; that preparation be made for them now so that they can have pleasant, comfortable homes in which to live, good schools in which to educate their children, and that their general welfare may be considered.

making new toys for the poor chil-dren's Christmas. They have done exdren's Christmas. They have done excellent work in repairing these toys and many of the poor children will be made happy by them on Christmas day. Thesday and Wednesday of this week the toys will be on exhibit at the soldier's club room on North Main street. They wish to sell enough toys to pay for the material used in repairing old ones and in the making of new ones. The eighth grade at the Adam's school has done especially good work in water color paintings and have framed them themselves. The Washington school has done very good work in the repairing of the toys. The rooms will be open from nine to five o'clock on both days.

"The ROMANCE of TARZAN"

The concluding chapters of "TA RZAN of the Apes" From the book by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS.

THE CATACLYSMIC ROMANCE OF PRIMEVAL MAN AND MODERN MAID MIDST JUNGLE . WILDS AND PALACES

This is the REAL superpicture you have been waiting months to see, the mighty Cinema Drama, picturing with massive and overpowering effect the strange adventures that befall Tarzan, primitive nobleman, and White King of an African ape-tribe, who follows the beautiful white girl he has rescued from death in the African jungles to her home amid the regal magnificence of civilized society where love leads him into paths more dangerous than those he trod in his native wilds.

FILLED WITH SCENES OF WEIRD POWER THAT WILL HAUNT YOU FOR DAYS

You will see Tarzan rescue a white man from the jaws of an infuriated lion, and dispatch the beast before your eyes with a sheath-knife.

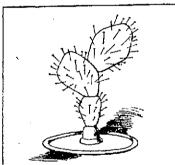

You will see Tarzan fight six average cannibals at one time, and dispose of them with his naked hands. You will see Tarzan left the jungle.

When the baseball season rolls around it is almost certain that at lrost one familiar. National leaguer will be missing. He is none other than Jake Daubert, the veteran first baseman of the Robins, so says and eastern scribe. However, if Daubert is wearing a Brooklyn uniform next spring the fana can rest assured that he is playing for less than he ever received from President Charles H. Ebbets. Five years ago, in the days of the Federal league, Daubert held up Ebbets for a five year contract culling for a yearly salary of $9,000. Ebbets, in order to keep Daubert in organized baseball, was forcer to give in to the player's demands, and since the contract was signed until the close of the abbreviated season of 1918, the last year of the fact contract. Ebbets has been dameing to Daubert's nuisic.

But now the worm has turned, and Ebbets evident is going to let Daubert know that he no longer holds the willp. If Daubert wants to play ball hy will have to play with the Brooklyns and for Ebbets offers him. If he is not satisfied with the contract he will have to remain idle as far as baseball is concerned. Daubert is on the reserve list of the Brooklyn club, and he will be offered a contract with all the other members of the team. Daubert will probably be asked to play hall for about $1,200 or $1,500 per season, which is quite a drop from $5,000. If Daubert refuses to sign the papers Ebbets is not going to worry. mpers Ehhets is not going to worry

The president of the club intends to keep him on the reserve list and while he is on the list no other club in the mafore can dicker for his services. It is expected of course that Daubbert will not sign the contract offered him, and flading that the Brocklyn club refuses to release him from their reserve list he will probably go in business for himself.

With Daubert absent the Flatbush fans will probably see Ivan Olson, who guarded shortstop for several years, on the initial bug. Ray Schmandt will remain at second and Olice O'Mara at third. Olson's place will be looked after by Chuck Ward, who is now in France, but is expected back before the train starts from the training camp playing first base will not be a new experience for Olson. Several years ago he was a member of the Cleveland Indians and was stationed at the first stop off and on. first stop off and on, Danbert and Ehbets are now mixed up in litigation. When the 1918 season closed on Labor Day Daubert and the other members of the club received their salary up until that day. In Daubert's opinion Ebbets should have paid him the full amount of the contract. He clums that as he was ever the draft age then and unaffected by the "work or dight" order he was in a possition to continue playing ball. The first baseman brought his case befor the national commission soon after the ball parks closed and he was turned down. Jake is now bringing this to court.

was with a heart benting high with excitement and emotion that Warren Tresham left his office, homeward bound with news so wonderful that, caim, steady-going young business man of system and discipline as he was, his usual mental agitation might be condoned.

All he thought of at the moment-was Irma, his wife. He pictured with pleasure her surprise, her delight. He tarified with pride to realize how the corld would look upon the new grand life he could offer her. For that day, unexpectedly, he had been informed that a half uncle left him securities the regular income from which was over $8,000 a year.

They had been married just three weeks. Warren had a position as a draftsman. They had planned to board with the parents of Irma until enough was accumulated to start in house-keeping. The Woolsons were careful, thrifty people and Irma had been brought up to work and economize. "Dear girl! she has never had a hance for the fine things of life," so-Moquized Warren. Now how her sweet little heart will delight at having plenty to get along on and to Warren lost sight of the happy hours of the brief honeymoon when Irma planned out the future. He had marveled, at the businesslike way with which she mapped out life on a basis of $80 a month. Rent of three rooms, $15," calcu-hated Irma. "We won't turnsh the parlor till the second menth. Then the rug. When that's paid for a Mortis chair, and a nent, wretty sewing ris cluir and a neat, pretty sewing cocker for me. Then the druperles. Oh, what we get we will pay for, never minding the rush and fever of extravagauce like the Dalbys, who got mar-ried when we ilid."

"Yes, poor Dulby is starting in pretty ecklessiy," said Warren, "and will soon face nothing but debts."

He burst in now upon the quiet, orderly home circle with so much animation that they instinctively discerned that he had something unusual to impart. He approunced the change in his fortune in a sentence: "A relative has left me an income of $6,000

Mr. Woolson looked awed. Woolson almost brightened. Irma said nothing as Warren proceeded to bunysaily draw a picture of the golden future before then. He noticed a strangely inharmonious expression in her eyes. "Sort of dazed, dear?" he asked.

"No, Warren," she responded quite gravely, "only what about all our sweet It's like shattering the darling dream of our life."

"We're past that now," ro'lle Warn, trying to obscure sentiment with a new enthusiasm. "Of course I shall not slave along on only $20 a week, and we must start in right away with an establishment of our own in accordance with our new prospects."

Amid the hurry, bustle and excitement of the ensuing month Warren did not notice that there had come a change over Irma. She was at times drawn into the vortex of his liberality. Then a species of duliness and gloom rould intervene.

Warren opened a rather expensive office and set up business for himself as a manufacturers' agent. He and Irua secured a splendidly furnished spactment in a fashionable quarter. where Mrs. Dalby established herself and was the center of a social group quite some prominence. Irma submissively followed her husband's lend. but pretty clothes, luxurious surroundings and gittering superficialties seemed to deaden, instead of animate her. She grew strangely slight.

"Warren." spoke Mrs. Woolson one day, "I am getting worried about Irma. She comes here in her fine clothes, sits around in a disconsolate way, and seems roused out of it only when I let her put on a big apron and make a play of helping me about the house. I do not think she is either contented or happy."
Warren went away thoughtful. He had also begun to discover that the acquisition of money had dissipated all those little comforting plans that had kept their hearts bright and natural as the innocent longings of children building sand hovels and looking upon them as palaces.

One day he came home earlier than usual, and from his pale face and dis-turbed mice Irma knew that he was the hearer of disturbing news.

"Irma," he said at once, "our riches have taken wings. The securities from which we have received our income have falled and the stock will not pay out more than ten cents on the Slowly, automatically, in fact, Irms began to remove the sparkling necklace, the rings on her fingers, "There is enough to pay our debts?" was her single, anxious inquiry.

"More than that, dear," answered her husband.

"And enough, oh Warren, enough to carry out our old happy dreams?" and ste went to a desk and brought forth the list covering their early prospective housekeeping needs.

He was amazed at her utter indifference to the wealth so dearly bought. For the first time in months her eyes were joyous, her face that of one re-

Heved of a great burden.
"Oh, Warren!" she cried, "let us be grateful, let us go back to the dear, sweet old life!"

Evansville, Dec. 16.—At an early hour Saturday morning the angel of death summoned Glenn Yarwood to his eternal home. Glenn was the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yarwood and was in his fifteenth year. He had gone to the home of his brother, Stanley Yarwood, residing on a farm near Brooklyn, to help with the work, because his brother and family were ill with the influence. Within a short time Glenn nimself was stricken with the disease and died after a short illness. The family are grief stricken and the deepest sympathy of the entire community is extended to them. Glenn is survived by his parents, one brother and two sisters. The funeral will be held from the home at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Retta Miles Johnson.

The remains of the late Mrs. Retta Miles Johnson, who died at her home in Beloit the latter part of last week, were brought to Evansville Saturday and funeral services held from the Baptist church Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Johnson is survived by her husband and one child. She was the sister of Charles Miles of this city. Interment was made in Maple Hill cemotery.

the milk question by W. J. Kittle, secretary of the Chicago Milk Producers. Association.

In opening his address, Mr. Kittle fold of the great demand for milk at the prosent time and also pointed out the prosent time and also pointed out the many reasons why milk was in such domand. Milk producing has been increasing for many years and at the present time is one of the important factors of the mildle west. The speaker related how the price of milk was set and stated emphalisably that at no time has the food administration or the United States government ever set the price of milk. He stated that a member of the food administration was generally present at the conferences but at no time had he ever set a price or even suggested a price to establish a price for milk. He was there as an observer and to offer suggestions regarding the producing of milk, but Mr. Kittle stated that he attended marly all of the offers suggestions regarding the producing of milk but Mr. Kittle stated that the price of the food administration was generally all of the offers suggestions regarding the producing of milk but Mr. Kittle stated that the price of the food administration was generally all of the offers suggestions regarding the producing of milk but Mr. Kittle stated that he attended hearly all of the milk conferences and that he wanted it independent to the spoke of the various prices of milk and explained to the various prices of the food administration and the price of the food administration and the price of the food administration was generally all of the milk conferences and that he wanted that the price of the food administration and the price should be.

The Father"

An inspirational sermon by Rev. Raymond G. Pierson on organized effort for human betterment, and especially emphasizing the work of the Red Cross was preached on yesterday morning at the Baptist church. Taking as his topic, "An Ancient Promise, and its Modern Fulfillment," the speaker drow a likeness between all the great forces working for the upiffing of mankind, and what Jesus had prophesied should come to pass after he was gone, through the efforts of his disciples. The text was taken from the 14th chapter of John, and the 12th verse,—"Greater works than these shall you do, when I go unto the Father."

The address was prefaced with a The Mayas have disappeared, but The Mayas have disappeared of Indians which settled in the low-lands of Guatemala in Central America. Best Canditions for Sleep. The best time for sleeping is that time that will favor the greatest degree of relaxation. With most people this is some time during the hours of darkness, when there isn't so much going on to distract the senses of sight and hearing. Just what hours should be devoted to sleep is not as important as that there should be enough of them. The so-called beauty sleep, achieved during the hours preceding midnight, is a fact only because it adds to the number of hours which, under ordinary conditions, we might be supposed to spend in bed. Most of us get up at about the same time every morning-no matter how early or how late we've gone to bed the night before. So there isn't a word of truth in the old fable that one hour of sleep before midnight is worth any two hours later. Sleep is sleep, provided only that it is sound, restful sleep-whether we get it at eight o'clock in the evening, two o'clock in the morning, or one o'clock the next afternoon. If we can get our sleep undiluted by disturbance so much the better.

Friendly Boy, Timid Cat. Standing on the sidewalk in front of a dwelling house in a midtown street, a garbage can with a cover on It and with some shreds of stuff sticking out from under the cover. A big cat standing on its hind legs at the can, pulling off this stuff and trying to get the cover off.

A little down the street was a small boy, a bright small boy of about seven years, and when he saw the hungry cat at the can he resolved to help. So he walked up quietly and removed the cover and then stood back a few paces with it, holding the cover in front of him as a warrior holds his shield.

But the cat had never met a boy like that, and instead of staying to supply itself at the bounteous store thus made so easily accessible, it, wheeled and fied.-New York Times.

Passing of the Tall Hat. The quaint tall hat which is now only seen in Wales, or on the heads of stage witches in pantomimes, was originally the fashionable head-dress for ladies during the reign of Queen Anne. A curious result of that fashion can, or could lately, be found at the West-Country vicarage once held by Lancelot Blackburne, the retired buccaneer who became archbishop of York. There the lintels of the doorways are, or were, abnormally high, to enable Mrs. Blackburne to go from room to room without fear of damage to her hat.

Several years ago a favorite dog ("Poor Little Prince"), which belonged to the duke of Cambridge, was run over in the park, brought to the lodge and afterward buried in the garden. A marble stone shows the place where After this many who had heard of the event requested to have their dogs laid to rest in the same plot of ground, and thus it came about hat the permission of the duke and the deputy ranger was obtained to allow the garden to become a cemetery It has now been in existence many Banches Converted Into Farms. A correspondent in the West writes that the most notable change now taking place in that country, especially in the southern parts of Alberta and Our stock is complete in every Saskatchewan, is the passing of the ranch. These large blocks of land are being dissolved, so to speak, into farms of ordinary size.

"Today," writes this correspondent, "thousands upon thousands of acres of land, vast stretches of clean prairie that have for a quarter of a century known little more than the trample of farmsteads, and the timeworn romance of the cowboy and the corral is giving way to the modern romance of the reaper."-Montreal Herald.

Rocky Land Breeds Sailors.

The best sailors in the world come from Brittany, and the best sailors in Brittany hall from Ouessant island, the land farthest west in France. This island, which is named Ushant on the American charts, is rocky, forbidding, almost barren of trees, so much so that the Breton fathers tell their children not to climb any trees when they go visiting. North, west and south of the sland is open water, which in winter is almost constantly in a turmoil because of the frequent storms. The channel, the Atlantic and the Bay of Biscay vie with each other in vain efforts to overwhelm the island and prevent its inhabitants from wresting a living either from the land or the water.—Chicago Dally News.

Trees Firmly Anchored.

The great limbs of the tree are full of leaves and every leaf acts as a sail to catch the wind. Tremendous pressure is exerted against an old tree when the wind is blowing. It bends a little from the top; its limbs wave in the air, but it stands erect. It is anchored in the ground by the roots, of course; that is understood. But imif you please, what great spread the roots must have, how they must be interlaced in the earth, to what depth they must extend in the earth, to hold the great tree upright as the winds press against it.

Friendly Caution.

The "Big Smoke"

By T. B. ANDERSON

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.) One month after Neal Dacre wedded bright, pretty Etta Burridge they took possession of a land claim adjoining an Indian reservation. Just after they had built their little four-room cabin their nearest neighbor, a widower, died leaving a nine-year-old boy. The kind-bearted Dacres adopted Will Clayton and he became one of the happy family circle.

Sixty days later America entered the war and Neal Dacre was one of the first to enlist. Etta did not strive to deter him from his duty. He was among the first to go over to France, and although the cost of living and land payments were doubly exacting Etta worked hard to make both ends meet.

and bleeding. One of our Indians, for he wears the red topknot. The other Indians, no topknot, jumped on him. Quick! he is groaning and is nearly killed.

Will piloted Etta to a spot where. bleeding profusely from a dozen wounds, was a young brave whom she recognized as the son of the reservation chief.

It took only a glance to comprehend that the injured warrior, weak, helpless, half insensible, would bleed to death in a few moments if his wounds were not attended to. Practical, swift acting Etta tore her apron to pieces for bandages, sent Will to the house for a little wagon used in the field and within half an hour had her patient charming personality and a great favorite among the young people. Her untimely death cast a shadow over the entire community. She leaves to mourn her death her husband and three weeks old son; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Williams; two sisters, Mrs. Fred Valentine of Chicago and Miss Marjory Williams of Milton Junction. Funeral arrangements will be made loter. resting in comfort on a couch in the cabin out of danger.

It was four miles to the reservation and Etta at once dispatched Will thither with word concerning her patient. The latter was conscious when an old Indian woman, his mother, and several ornves appeared on horseback.

The Count-On-Me club held a social It was some weeks later when Etta received word from abroad that in an engagement with the enemy her husband had been shot down and was in the hospital. He had won a medal for exceptional bravery, but had lost one arm. Within a short time, the advice stated, he would be permanently invalided and sent home.

Etta worked harder than ever, There vas plenty to eat, even a surplus, but there were installment payments on the 160 acres shead which she saw no prospect of providing for. Affairs in the district were somewhat unsettled. Etta heard that the Indians were to be removed farther away, there was considerable grumbling on their part over the decision, some ugly members of the tribe had burned down settlers' barns and Etta felt quite uneasy. Will, always on the lookout for excitement, came rushing to the cabin breathless-one day:

"Mother," he panted, "what do you think-trouble! The Big Smoke!" "Why, what do you mean?" inquired

"Why, what do you mean?" inquired Etta with some trepidation.

"Out in the woods, the chief and all his great men. They were sitting around in a circle and smoking, oh! so much, all the time. You know what they call it—a council, then a ward dance, and then they burn and kill. Mother, shut and bar everything, maybe they'll be here soon."

"No, Will," dissented Etta, calmiy as she could, "we must show no fear and surely the great chief is our friend. We will leave everything open and if they come, treat them civilly."

All the same Etta was secretly apprehensive. A "big smoke," even as the quick-witted little fellow surmised, usually was a prelude-to an uprising of Indians. When, two hours later, a procession of half a dozen of the reservation tribe led by their chief sol-

"Yes, very good friends. You save son's life. The form not paid for yet?" he interrogated bluntly. "Why, no," admitted Etta, "but my husband is coming back from the war and we may find some way-" "This way," announced the chief, producing a buckskin hag, "Many ounces. It is a gift," and his companions nodded approval.

There was $2,000 in gold dust in the bag, Etta latter ascertained, and she was unable to induce the chief to take it back, or any part of it. Her hopes were high, her heart singing all day long as she awaited the return of her soldier boy from France.
